BALLADE OF A STUBBORN LOVER.

Never a kiss she gave him when
Swift she vanished from out his sight,
Lost as fades in a marish fen
Phosphor gleams of the witches' light.
Stanch was he and her faithful knight—
That indeed she could not gainsay—
Murmuring not at her sudden flight;
Ah, willow and welladay!

Back he turned to the haunts of men,
Mingled in with the bitter fight,
Caught the thread of the world again,
Never doubting in all despite;
Knew no wrong that was not her right,
Smiling still in the olden way,
Not resenting a fancied slight;
Ah, willow and welladay!

Recked she little in passing then
Whether on him would sorrow light,
Thus to wander from out his ken,
Fading and disappearing quite;
Though he bent to her beauty's might,
Never a prayer had he to pray;
Curse on him for a stubborn wight;
Ah, willow and welladay!

ENVOY.

Prince, when the bards of earth recite,
They strike the chords and insistent say,
Some will love, though the loved one smite;
Ah, willow and welladay!

—Ernest McGaffey in January Woman's Home Companion.

The Instructive Case of Jenkins

Jenkins is a bright young lawyer, who has sat before a big empty desk for nearly two years without earning enough to buy a whole suit of clothes. Of course he's busy. It takes him about ten hours a week to study out the diplomatic possibilities of his next encounter with his landlady. Then there is his affair at the restaurant. He has to keep watch of the holes in his meal ticket and look for chance invitations to more sumptuous meals. It took him nearly a year of finance with Chinese laundrymen before he adopted celluloid. What leisure he had was until lately occupied with a sort of credit correspondence with his father, upon whom he is at liberty to draw only in cases of extreme necessity. Jenkins has written home many really able definitions of "extreme necessity."

All this may not prove that Jenkins is willing to work, but he is, and he proved it last week. He "offices" with an eminent lawyer. This means, in his case, that he gets deskroom in exchange for his services as office boy, court messenger and a few more important vicarious duties. In the same office with Jenkins there is Stack, the clerk, whose chief excuse for being there is that he is nephew to the aforesaid eminent one. Then there is Harkins, the stenographer, who really works and who is the envy of both Jenkins and Stack because he draws a good salary and is allowed postage on his own mail. Stack's salary is $7.50, but as he lives with his uncle and pays no board he is really the aristocrat of the office. Jenkins gets 2 per cent on the bills he collects.

Two weeks ago, however, somebody bought him a good dinner, and then such an unwonted courage rose up within him that he decided to approach the eminent lawyer with whom he "offices" and ask advice. To the lawyer Jenkins said:

"Mr. Lord, I'm not getting along very well, and I don't know exactly what to do to improve my affairs. Of course I don't want to leave you, but the fact is if I don't commence to take in a little more money I'll have to get a situation, go into some trade—quit the law."

"Now, see here, Jenkins," said Mr. Lord. "I'll tell you what I'd do in your place. I'd start a collection agency. You can do it right here in my office. Take in the other boys; get up a little stock company. It doesn't require any capital, and if it's run right it ought to pay. I'll give Stack all my old accounts, and you can get as many more as you want by advertising."

Jenkins' eyes bulged with joy. Here at last was his chance. He thanked his superior repeatedly, and that very day the Calumet Quick Collection company was formed. Jenkins wrote a long letter to his father, explaining that postage stamps were an "extreme necessity," and then drew for $5. Stack and Harkins each contributed as much, and the new concern began life with a stock of enthusiasm and hope that was not expressed in the amount of paid up capital. Jenkins contributed most of the enthusiasm, but Stack and Harkins hoped for the best. The work was so divided that the young lawyer had to do all the outside work. The stenographer, of course, could not leave the office except for meals, and the clerk argued that it would pay to have some one at headquarters to meet customers and clients; so, with some misgivings, Jenkins agreed to this arrangement.

The young lawyer was determined to do or die in his new venture, and to this end he came down to the office about daybreak on the morning of his first effort. He had a package of statements an inch thick and a long book in which the names and amounts were listed. He began work at 8 o'clock with 65 cents for car fare in his pocket and the anticipation of swift and certain success shining in his eyes. On foot, in street cars and in trains he literally flew about the town till noon.

Some of the men he sought were dead.

Others talked as if they would like to be.

Many had left the city for good—for their own good, Jenkins thought. Some were so poor that he knew they would never pay.

A few laughed at him.

Nobody paid him.

He got back to the office about noon broken in finances, but not in spirit. He almost lost his temper, however, when Stack laid down the paper covered novel he was reading, took his feet down from the steam radiator and asked:

"How much did you get?"

He even fancied that he could hear Harkins laugh when he answered: "I didn't collect a cent. Hard luck, isn't it? I ran into a gang of tough ones and then ran out of car fare. Any answers to our dunning letters?"

"Not a glimmer," mourned Harkins.

Stack looked glad of it. He loaned Jenkins a half dollar for car fare, charged it up on the company's book and resumed his warm place in the corner.

When the young lawyer was gone out, the clerk sidled up to the stenographer and said:

"Say, Hark, I think we're on a dead one, don't you?"

"I hope not, for Jenk's sake. He's so in earnest," said the stenographer.

"Well, it's Jenk's doings. He suggested it, and I guess he needs the money worse than we do."

"But if it fails?"

"Well, if it fails I think Jenkins ought to stand the losses. I'm out five-fifty already, and it's his fault."

"But he's doing all the work," suggested Harkins.

"Well, so he ought." And Mr. Stack went back to his novel.

The young lawyer worked like a fiend. When car fare was gone, he walked, even ran, after his supposed victims. He quit going back to the office and worked far into the night. He pestered the life out of every debtor who showed the least sign of paying up, and if they offered him a dollar he took it and asked for two. In the meantime, a few answers to advertisements came into the office, but Mr. Lord seized upon them as "too deep for the boys." Nobody called. Stack began and finished three paper covered novels. Harkins plodded away indoors, both wondering how long Jenkins' nerve would stand the hardships of chasing his prey through ice and snow.

At noon on Saturday Jenkins appeared at the office. He looked thinner than ever. His shoes were worn out. He had a piece of red flannel round his neck and his voice was a husky whisper. Harkins didn't have the heart to ask him how he fared, but Stack yelled:

"Hello, old man! We thought you had absconded with the firm's money!"

Jenkins was very silent. He sat down at his desk and began to make out his statement. Stack watched him with curious interest as he piled up the few checks and greenbacks which represented the first week's business of the Calumet Quick Collection company. He had collected $240, and the net earnings of the company at 10 per cent amounted to $24—just $8 for each of the three stockholders.

"Good boy!" said Stack, picking up his share. "You're a wonder. I didn't think you'd make it go."

Harkins, being what Stack calls "a chump," clushed when Jenkins handed him his share of the profits.

"I'll tell you, Mr. Jenkins," he said. "I don't feel as if I was entitled to any of this money. You and Stack here did all the work, and you ought to keep my share for stamps and car fare, eh?"

But Jenkins insisted, and the stenographer yielded.

"All right," he laughed; "I'll take it on condition that you take dinner with me this evening. We'll celebrate the week's success—kind of christen the business. What do you say?"

Jenkins and Stack promised, and at 7 o'clock that evening the three partners were sitting together at a restaurant table christening the collection company.

When they got to the coffee, Jenkins let his bomb fall upon the festal board in this wise:

"Now, Hark and Stack, as to this collection company, I don't know whether it is 'the quick' or 'the dead,' but I want to announce that, so far as I am concerned, it is dissolved, evaporated, vanished. Here are our accounts." He pulled out the package. "They are supposed to represent $8,000 of good accounts. You can have them. I wouldn't give $4 for the bunch."

His partners looked at him in astonishment. "You're joking!" they chorused. "Why, we have just got to work!"

"You mean I've just got to work," said Jenkins. "Well, I'm done too. I'm out $5 for stamps, I've worn out a pair of shoes, I've done $100 worth of the meanest work on earth, and I haven't got anything but $8 and the grip. This is the first square meal I've had for two weeks, and I tell you the quick collection business is all off."

The next day Stack said to Harkins that Jenkins wasn't such a mark after all. As for the young lawyer, he is in doubt whether to go back to the farm or look for a more congenial place to "office," for now Mr. Lord, the eminent attorney, says that Jenkins has "no sand" and will never get along unless he learns to "love work."—Chicago Record.

The Toper's Dinner.

Instead of going to their work one Monday a number of workmen entered a public house determined to spend the day there.

About noon a woman looked in and said, addressing one of the party:

"I supposed you are not coming home to dinner today, so I have brought you your share."

So saying, she placed a dish and plate, carefully tied up, in front of the toper and went away.

"Looks well after you, your wife does," said a mate. "Suppose we taste and see what it's like?"

"Aye, let us have a taste," said the husband as he untied the bundle.

But the plates were empty, and there was a note with them which ran as follows:

"I hope you will enjoy your dinner. It is the same as myself and the children are having at home."—London Answers.

His Method.

The bell in the private office rang three times, and the man at the desk hastily reached for a flannel bandage, which he put around his neck. Then he arranged a sling in which to put one arm, mussed up his hair, drew down the corners of his mouth, got out of his chair and painfully limped toward the door.

"Mr. Smithkins?" inquired the well dressed man who opened it just at that moment.

The man with the bandage gave a half suppressed groan and answered: "Yes; that's my name. What can I do for you?"

"You seem to be suffering," suggested the caller.

"Suffering!" returned the other. "Do you think I'm doing this for fun? Do you suppose I bandage my throat for amusement, tie up my arm for sport and limp because I think it's graceful? And I've been in this way for six months. But what can I do for you?"

"Pardon me," said the caller, backing out. "I'll call again some other time."

"It's some trouble," soliloquized the man with the bandage as he removed the harness and returned to his desk, "but experience has taught me that it is really the quickest way to discourage a life insurance agent and keep him discouraged. That fellow never will come back."—Chicago Post.

Appendicitis.

"Appendicitis," said Dr. Abbe in an address before the New York Academy of Medicine, "has few rivals in the surgical field and takes rank today with typhoid, pneumonia and rheumatism in medical thought. Surely when the active surgeon of today can number 100 operations for diseased appendices yearly—and there are a dozen such men in New York and in other cities in the same proportion—we begin to grasp the importance of the subject and its menace to the community.

"The public continues to ask the physician what was appendicitis formerly, and he answers, 'Probably it passed under the description of "inflammation of the bowels" or "peritonitis."' It is true that less than a generation ago numberless people in the course of summer travel were stricken with so called inflammation of the bowels or peritonitis and died.

"Now we hear of no one so reported, but it is said, 'He had an attack of appendicitis, was beyond the reach of a surgeon and died,' or, 'So-and-so had an attack of appendicitis, was operated upon and recovered.' Hospital statistics show the same changes of tabulated diseases. It is merely a new name, not a new disease."

Dickens' Supremacy.

"So this, then, is your husband's new library, Mrs. Muchrox? Ah, I see he has Dickens and Thackeray side by side. Which do you consider the greater of the two?"

"Oh, my, Dickens! Joshua paid $2.40 more for them Dickenses than he had to give for Thackeray's books right at the same shop."—Chicago Times-Herald.

The pain produced by a hornet's sting is caused by a poison injected into the wound, and so instantaneous is its effect as to cause the attack of this insect to resemble a violent blow in the face.

Diamonds in the rough are sometimes spoiled in the cutting, just as some pupils are spoiled in the educating.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Wigs For Hire.

"Men do not hire street wigs," said a New York wigmaker. "The man who wears a wig constantly owns it. But there are nevertheless many wigs hired out. Actors, for example, hire wigs, and wigs are rented for masqueraders and costume parties, and sometimes wigs are rented for surprises. So that after all wigs are included in the great list of things that can be hired, which list would be found, I fancy, to include pretty much everything that could be named."

Safe.

The little child is safe from ordinary dangers in the care of the faithful dog. But neither the dog's fidelity, nor the mother's love can guard a child from those invisible foes that lurk in air, water and food—the germs of disease. Children need to be specially watched and cared for. When there is loss of appetite, lassitude and listlessness in a child, an attempt should be made to revive the appetite and rally the spirits. In Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery parents have found an invaluable medicine for children. Its purely vegetable character and absolute freedom from alcohol and narcotics commend it to every thoughtful person. It is pleasant to the taste, unlike the foul oils and their emulsions offered for children's use. "Golden Medical Discovery" makes pure blood and sound flesh, and absolutely eliminates from the system the poisons which feed disease.

Mrs. Ella Gardner, of Waterview, Middlesex Co., Va., whose daughter suffered from malarial poisoning and catarrh, writes: "My little daughter is enjoying splendid health. I am glad I found a doctor who could cure my child. She took twelve bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' eight bottles of 'Pellets,' and one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and she is well. We thank God for your medicines."

Give the little ones Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets when a laxative is needed. They're easy to take and don't gripe.

DR. KENNON of Petaluma condemned and ordered killed three glandered horses from Marin county which were sold to parties in that town Wednesday. Two of the nags had been disposed of for chicken feed.

THE value of the country newspaper as an expression of the town's character is pretty well understood. The intending settler secures a copy of a paper from a section he wishes to locate in, and judges from it whether he shall make the place his home. He acts on the idea expressed by Thurlow Weed, who is quoted in a recent issue of the Sacramento Record-Union, saying: "Thurlow Weed, one of the shrewdest publicists who ever lived, once declared that if he were given inspection of a country newspaper published in a section of which he had no previous knowledge, he could by perusal of three issues of such paper come to a very accurate judgment concerning the resources of the locality, the social conditions of the people, the industrial and business character of the community, and the moral and educational atmosphere of the place and its vicinity—and Thurlow Weed was right.

"REMEMBER that the boarders are with you in the country for their own pleasure, and not for yours, and try and adapt yourself to them, rather than demand that they should adapt themselves to you," writes Caroline Benedict Burrell on "Keeping Summer Boarders with Success," in the May Ladies' Home Journal. "One of the simplest ways of making them comfortable is to give them their meals by themselves and at their own hours. As your family is accustomed to early rising you can have an early breakfast, and have it all over before the guests will wish to rise. So with the dinner and supper. This may seem to entail a great deal of trouble on the farmer's wife; yet a trial will convince her that it is the most satisfactory arrangement all around, the extra trouble not worth considering. As to the food, city people expect certain things on a farm, none of them too difficult to provide—good drinking water, plenty of milk and cream, fresh eggs and butter, vegetables in abundance and fruit in season. If these are all that they should be it will be found that allowances will be made if the meat is not of the quality to be had in city markets, and if there are few fancy dishes of any sort."

THE Supreme Court handed down a decision Monday in the case of Sonoma county vs. Gil P. Hall. The suit was brought to compel the bondsmen of ex-County Recorder Hall to pay to the county an alleged shortage in his accounts of $6,580.86. The suit was the outcome of the arrest and acquittal of Hall on four indictments found by the Grand Jury against him. Failing to secure a conviction this county then sued Hall's bondsmen to recover the alleged shortage. In the decision handed down by the Supreme Court on Wednesday it is declared that the statute of limitations had operated against the plaintiff in the case. The county sued him on his official bonds, contending that the liability was on the bond, and that the statute of limitations that would apply was the statute placing the limitation at four years on written obligations. Defendant and his bondsmen contended, on the other hand, that the statute of limitations that applied was the limitation of three years, and that it commenced to run immediately upon the misappropriation of funds by an officer. The Superior Court gave judgment against Hall and his bondsmen. Hall appealed the case to the Supreme Court and the judgment of the lower court was reversed. Deputy Attorney General Sturtivant and J. R. Leppo of Santa Rosa secured a rehearing upon the ground that the early decisions in California supported the views contended for by the county of Sonoma. The court Monday in its decision said: "We find nothing in the cases cited to warrant a change in our views."

BONUS FOR A CANNERY.

Liberal Offer Made to the Rose Canning Company to Locate Here.

Several citizens of this place have been interesting themselves the past week in an indeavor to induce the Rose Canning Company of Santa Rosa, whose plant was recently destroyed by fire, to locate in this place. The directors of the Sonoma Valley Bank have parparticularly interested themselves in this matter, their intention being to turn the proposition over to the Sonoma Valley Board of Trade when it is in proper shape to do so.

The Bank offers as a bonus to the Rose Canning Company, or any other company, for locating its plant here one acre of land on the Haraszthy tract west of town and the large wine cellar on the place, which will be converted into a cannery. It is proposed to remove the wine cellar building and convert it into a cannery by public subscription, but the ground and building goes as a gift from the bank.

This proposition has been taken under consideration by the Rose Company, and at this writing it is not known whether they will accept or not.

There is a doubt in the minds of the gentlemen who are at the head of the Rose Cannery as to the ability of the valley to supply it with the variety of fruits and vegetables required to successfully operate it. Now, in order to remove these doubts and assure the location here of this enterprise, all those who have land suitable for berries and small fruits should notify Mr. Duhring, Vice President of the Bank, at once of the number of acres they will put out in berries, small fruits and vegetables for canning purposes if they are guaranteed a fair market price for the produce at the local cannery. It is also essential that our farmers make known to what extent they can plant corn, tomatoes and string beans for this season's run of the cannery in case it should be located here.

If you have only a small piece of land do not let that deter you. All this information should be in Mr. Duhring's hands by Wednesday of next week, as it is probable that it will be definitely decided by that time if the location of the cannery here is practicable.

Every one must act promptly if anything is to be done this season, especially in regard to growing vegetables.

The above indicates how a home market will open up new avenues of profitable industries for our people, not to mention the money that will be paid to the people of our valley for labor in the cannery itself. By all means let us have this good thing.

Cupid is Ever Lazy.

There was a union of June and December amid the beautiful sunshine of an April day in the chambers of Superior Judge Burnett in the court house at Santa Rosa on last Thursday when Miss Jane Cober, aged 51 years, was claimed by Newton J. Ferguson, a blithesome bridegroom of past 72 summers. The wedding was performed in the presence of a number of friends of the couple.

After the brief ceremony the newly-married twain left the courthouse with faces wreathed in smiles, holding each other's hand, as most young lovers do. As they walked down the broad staircase some one hummed softly the hymeneal which begins: "The voice that breathed o'er Eden, that joyous wedding morn."

The bride and groom are both residents of Alexander Valley and both are well-known and respected. They have many friends, all of whom will join in wishing them many years of happiness in the holy estate of matrimony.—Press-Democrat.

Consumption

is, by no means, the dreadful disease it is thought to be—in the beginning.

It can always be stopped—in the beginning. The trouble is: you don't know you've got it; you don't believe it; you won't believe it—till you are forced to. Then it is dangerous.

Don't be afraid; but attend to it quick—you can do it yourself and at home.

Take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, and live carefully every way.

This is sound doctrine, whatever you may think or be told; and, if heeded, will save life.

AN exchange says that the kickers on the farm are not so hard to get along with as the kickers in the towns. The cow may be sold for beef, and the mule traded for a shotgun, but nothing but a funeral will get rid of the town kicker.

CONSTABLE OHM'S CASE.

Change of Venuo Granted Defendant.

The case of Constable Charles Ohm, charged with malicious mischief in demolishing a fence which had been erected by L. H. Green on disputed land at Embarcadero, has been transferred to Justice Brown's court, Santa Rosa. Justice of the Peace Small granted the change of venue on motion of defendant's attorney. The day for the trial has not yet been set.

Board of Trade.

The committee appointed by President Osborne of the Board of Trade to devise ways and means of raising money to advertise Sonoma Valley met in Weyl's Hall last Wednesday afternoon. The committee decided to make a personal appeal to each resident of the valley and to that end are preparing a statement of the use to which the money collected will be put. As soon as this is in proper form the members will canvass the valley. There was a general expression of opinion concerning the advisability of advertising our resources. All were of the opinion that judicious advertising is highly beneficial and to secure the above quality the committee will bend every endeavor.

May Go to Dawson City.

Gus Cornelius and several other young men of this place have been offered situations in the mines near Dawson City by the Messrs. Anderson, rich mine owners who have lately invested in farming property in this valley. The wages offered, from $7 to $10 per day and board, ought to be sufficient inducement for Gus and his companions to undergo the hardships of a miner's life in the far north, as transportation will cost them nothing. They are hesitating, but they will probably accept the job. If they do they will leave for Alaska the latter part of this month.

STORY FROM KLONDYKE

How the Messrs. Anderson Struck It Rich.

Bought a "Salted" Gold Mine Which Turned Out Fabulously Rich.

Here is an interesting little story which is going the rounds of Sonoma. The Messrs. Anderson, who purchased the Heller vineyards near this place for $10,000 on the occason of a recent visit to this valley, tell how they struck it rich near Dawson City.

A few years ago they joined the mad rush for the gold fields of the Klondyke in expectation of making their fortunes. They were inexperienced in placer mining and as they brought along with them about $2500 they were easy game for schemers. After being in Dawson for a short time they were sold a "salted" placer claim on one of the creeks near that place, and with visions of gold in sight they started in with a will to work, what was supposed to be by the unscrupulous parties who sold to them, a worthless mine. For three months they worked and toiled, but in vain, and at last it dawned upon them that they had been taken in and done for, and one of the unlucky miners was contemplating blowing his brains out. This he deferred, however, as a slight indication of gold had been discovered and the Andersons decided to keep on prospecting for a few weeks longer, with the result that before a week had elapsed they struck pay gravel and one day's clean up netted them $50,000. They still own that mine and to-day it is one of the richest in the Klondyke, and now the fortunate owners have all kinds of money.

RAINFALL AT SONOMA.

Precipitation Sunday and Monday 2.16 Inches.

The rain storm which set in last Sunday morning was a "soaker." The downpour was steady but gentle for almost twenty four hours. The ground was thoroughly soaked and hay, grain and pasturage were greatly benefited. A good crop of cereals is now assured in this valley.

Robt. Hall, local U. S. Signal Service Observer, reports the precipitation of the late storm as being 2.16 inches. This makes a total for the season of 25.35 as against 25 39 inches for a corresponding period last year.

Placed Under a Bond of $1,000

The case of the People vs. A. and F. Bocca, charged with making threats against Frederick Quien, whose ranch adjoins that of the defendents, came up before Judge Brown Wednesday. After listening to the evidence pro and con Judge Brown released the obstreperous defendants on their filing a bond in the sum of $1,000 each to keep the peace, and the feud between the disputing ranchers is now off.

Emile P. Lounibos Married.

The many friends of Emile P. Lounibos, the genial proprietor of "The Exchange," El Verano, and son of John Lounibos, manager of the Hearst ranch, will be surprised to learn that he was married in San Francisco on March 9th. The bride, nee Miss Bertha Lubas of the metropolis, is only fifteen years of age. Young Mr. Lounibos stole a march on Lounibos pere and his friends and the happy young couple kept their marriage a secret until last week. They have gone to housekeeping in the Lounibos mansion at El Verano.

Run Down by a Train.

James Lyons, while tramping between Napa Junction and Vallejo, one day this week, was run down by a Southern Pacific train, and it is feared fatally injured. He was walking absent mindedly along the ties when struck and was picked up by the cowcatcher and hurled high in the air. He paid no heed to the warning whistle of the train which could not be stopped in time to avoid the accident.

The dance at Glen Ellen Wednesday night was well attended by Sonoma party-goers.

THE CITY TRUSTEES.

V. Bulotti Elected a Member of the Board.

Street Sprinkling Contract Let--Bids for City Printing Laid Over--Other Matters.

The City Trustees held their regular monthly meeting last Wednesday evening.

Present--Trustees Duhring, Hotz, Harris and Cuicci.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and approved the following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

F. Harrison, electric light, $51.00; Jas. H. Albertson, salary, etc., $16.55; H. Munfrey, repairs, $2.00; A. Baccala, repairs, $1.25; Joe. B. Small, salary, etc., $25.35; L. H. Green, lumber, $4.84. Total, $100.99.

An opinion written by City Attorney Poppe, relating to the printing of the delinquent tax list, was read by the Clerk. The opinion holds that the publication is a legal charge against the city, but must be paid by delinquent taxpayers.

Two bids were received for doing the city printing for another year, but owing to a typographical or clerical error in the notice calling for bids, the matter was laid over until next Tuesday evening, when a special meeting will be held to consider the matter.

On motion of Trustee Hotz, seconded by Trustee Ciucci it was ordered that the successful bidder for sprinkling the streets of the city the coming season give a bond of $100 for the faithful performance of the contract.

Bids for street sprinkling service were then opened and read as follows: J. N. Stademan, $2.50 per day; L. Breitenbach, $2 39 per day.

On motion of Trustee Harris, seconded by Trustee Hotz, the contract was awarded to L. Breitenbach on condition that he file a bond in the sum of $100 for the faithful performance of the service.

Clerk Small was instructed to post notices calling for bids for cutting the grass in the Plaza and hauling the same away. Also, for removing the grass from the streets surrounding the Plaza and removing the same under the direction of the Plaza Committee. Also, to post notices calling for bids for cleaning all the ditches under the control of the Street Committee. Bids to be in the clerk's office by 8 P. M., Tuesday, May 7th.

On motion of Trustee Harris, seconded by Trustee Hotz, V. Bulotti was unanimously elected a City Trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. H. H. Davis.

The Board then adjourned to meet in special session on Tuesday evening next.

Mrs. Wallman's Estate.

In the matter of the estate of Catherine Wallman, deceased, Judge S. K. Dougherty handed down an opinion in which he continues the petition for letters of administration until May 27. Involved in the proceedings as to the probate of the estate is a will about which the question has arisen as to whether it was properly attested. The will is to be offered for probate. Emmet Seawell and Ben S. Wood, Jr., are the attorneys for the estate.

Senator Perkins' daughter will receive the President at her Oakland home.

FATHER YORKE'S LECTURE.

A Large Audience Gives Him an Enthusiastic Greeting.

The threatening weather last Tuesday evening did not deter the people of Sonoma Valley from turning out in force and according the Rev. Peter C. Yorke an enthusiastic greeting on the occasion of his first appearance on the lecture platform in Sonoma.

Every seat in the large hall was filled early in the evening and a number of benches had to be improvised to accommodate those who came in too late to secure desirable seats.

Father Yorke, R. J. Dowdall and Principal Benj. Weed of the Sonoma High School occupied seats on the platform. The latter acted as chairman of the evening, and as such introduced Father Yorke to the audience in an appropriate address.

Father Yorke's lecture was preceded by a choice vocal and instrumental program as follows: Piano duet, Misses Loretta Muldry and Essie Green; vocal solo, "Holy City," Miss N. Haraszthy; comic song, Jas. B. Small; chorus, "Distant Chimes," Misses Mary Valente, Essie Green, Rosella Graham, Katie Watt, Emma Eralde, Elvira Eralde, Pearl Bailey, Armenia Maffei; vocal solo, "Answer," Mr. Mandrill of San Francisco.

Father Yorke was then introduced to the audience and for nearly an hour entertained his hearers with one of the most masterly lectures ever delivered in this place. His theme, "Elements of True Patristism," abounded with logic, wit and humor. Father Yorke is a broad-minded and scholarly gentleman and the peer of any lecturer on the Pocific Coast to-day, and his lectures always attract large audiences where ever he appears irrespective of religious belief or nationality. The gathering at Union Hall Wednesday evening was no exception to the general rule in this respect.

After the distinguished speaker had concluded his lecture Mrs. Lulu de Emparan closed the literairy program with "America."

The floor was then cleared for dancing, which was indulged in by the votaries of Terpsichore for several hours.

Much credit is due to Rev. Father Leahy, the sisters of Presentation Convent and the ladies of St. Francis' Church for the excellent evening's entertainment.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, MAY 4, 1901.

AN INDIAN CIGAR SIGN.

The Fate That Overtook One Aggressive Wooden Savage.

The city of Little Muddy, on the upper Yellowstone, was an exceedingly wide awake town in 1887. When it had reached the mature age of 3 months, every kind of business man was represented except the cigar dealer, and the next week a man from Chicago named Stark opened a tobacco store, with a large, gaudy and aggressive wooden Indian in front, holding a tomahawk savagely in one hand and a bunch of cigars in the other. It would take a chapter to tell of all the trouble Stark had with that wooden aborigine. This variety of sign was rare in that region, and gentlemen not unconnected with the stock growing industry who came in from the ranges wearing spurs and weapons would resent his threatening attitude—for that matter, no Indian, even the most peaceably disposed, was popular. He was knocked off his pedestal half a dozen times a day. Stark learned to know what had happened whenever he heard a dull crash in front and would step outside and restore his fallen warrior.

But the red man did not meet his Waterloo till Tobe Hartley and a friend, preserved to us under the name of Long Isaac, came in from the Lightning's Nest neighborhood. A close friendship existed between these two worthies. It was their first vacation from the ranch for several months. They wandered about town in a receptive mood and sought to enjoy their visit. No facts are extant concerning their condition after some hours, but we may perhaps be allowed our suspicions. Finally they separated, and Tobe, coming along to the Indian and not noticing his upraised hatchet, sat down at his feet to rest. He soon fell asleep and sank lower. At this juncture Isaac came around the corner and took in the tragic situation at a glance.

"Killed my partner for a simple bunch of cigars, did you?" he cried. "Well, we'll see about it!" and he produced his firearms and began shooting accurately and rapidly. At the end of ten minutes Stark gathered up his noble savage in a basket, while the resuscitated Tobe and the avenging Isaac moved off arm in arm.—Harper's Magazine.

BATTLES OF NATURE.

Unceasing Struggles Which End In Survival of Fittest.

We read the tablets of long ago which the geologist has deciphered for us, and we find them an endless story of battles. The successful species which occupy the great geological horizons have come out of great tribulation. The trilobites and stone lilies of the silurian period, the gigantic club moss and fluted sigillarians of the coal age, the enormous ammonites of the jurassic and chalk epochs, the mighty elephants and majestic deer forms of the tertiary era are magnates of the times and masterpieces of the struggle. They have been redeemed at great price, even of a thousand species and tens of thousands of individuals who fell short of the typical fitness and were killed out. These magnates, each in its turn, were pioneers of progress, like the scouts of a great army and were caught in a physiological ambush.

The pedigree of the horse in the most recent past has been made out, traced shall we say, for a hundred thousand years before man came on the scene (for Lord Kelvin asked the geologist to hurry up and not be too lavish with time or we should have said 250,000 years before man). The fleetness, grace and strength of the horse are owing to his ability to walk on one toe, to which have been correlated the wonderful instincts by which he has become the partner of man in his industries and struggles. He has been derived in almost a strict gradation from the two toed, three toed, four toed and five toed ancestors which flourished in the ages which preceded man. Myriads of individuals and all the species and varieties died out to make room for the one toed selection to enable this favorite to occupy the ground unthwarted by crossing or by recurrence to average forms. He was redeemed at a great price and has come through a great tribulation.—Contemporary Review.

"It is with a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford, Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my show case, said to me: 'I really believe that medicine saved my life the past summer while at the shore,' and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." Sold by F. Duhring. *

FOR MALARIA, CHILLS AND FEVER.

The Best Prescription Is Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

The Formula Is Plainly Printed on Every Bottle, So That the People May Know Just What They Are Taking.

Imitators do not advertise their formula knowing that you would not buy their medicine if you knew what it contained. Grove's contains Iron and Quinine put up in correct proportions and is in a Tasteless form. The Iron acts as a tonic while the Quinine drives the malaria out of the system. Any reliable druggist will tell you that Grove's is the Original and that all other so-called "Tasteless" chill tonics are imitations. An analysis of other chill tonics shows that Grove's is superior to all others in every respect. You are not experimenting when you take Grove's—its superiority and excellence having long been established. Grove's is the only Chill Cure sold throughout the entire malarial sections of the United States. No Cure, No Pay. Price, 50c.

For You to Read

"What puzzled me in the beginning was that I kept losing flesh without any cause for it that I could see. I had a little trouble with my stomach, too, and after a while began to grow weaker and to cough. The cough, I thought, would soon go away and cure itself, but it didn't. It grew worse, and then I began to spit up a peculiar looking substance. I never thought of consumption, but one day I had a hemorrhage, and then was frightened in earnest and did just what you would do. I rushed to the doctor. He was either too busy, or something else, for he didn't do me any good. I kept going on down hill, and the outlook was bad. Things took a different turn, however, when I heard of Acker's English Remedy for Consumption, for I took it, and it not only cured my coughing and spitting, but also built up my whole system. I took on permanent flesh, and today am just as healthy a man as you can find in a week's travel. You may be sure I always keep Acker's English Remedy in the house, and it is a good thing I do so, for one night my youngest child was seized with croup. That hoarse, wheezy cough was the first signal, and I lost no time in giving the poor little sufferer proper doses of this grand medicine. In almost no time the disease was under control, and my child was saved. I advise every parent to have a bottle handy all the time. It serves the same purpose in keeping croup out of the house that a good lock and key serve to keep burglars out. It is both an expectorant and a tonic. It cured me of consumption and my child of croup, and I know what I am talking about." (Signed) Hon. M. Hogan, picture frame manufacturer, 242 Center Street, New York.

FLATFISHES' EYES.

A Migration Which Takes Place After the Creatures' Birth.

Flatfishes keep their white and blind side on the muddy or sandy bottom and pretend that the upper and speckled side is a part of that bottom. This they do to avoid observation, for in spite of their awkward shape they are swallowed at sight by pertinacious enemies, to the manifest discomfort of both. A greedy cormorant curling up and attempting to swallow a plaice, which tries to be as disobliging as possible, affords an object lesson not soon forgotten on the way not to behave at mealtimes. But the bird usually succeeds in its object, and the flatfish, in spite of persistent efforts to retain its natural flatness, at last disappears down the round, elastic throat of the cormorant. With a view to avoid unpleasantnesses of this kind, soles are wont to hide themselves in the sand, keeping only their eyes above the surface to act as sentinels.

In reality the dark surface of a sole, plaice or turbot is its side and not its back. It is true that both eyes are visible, which is not the case when a mackerel or a conger is laid on its side, but this is simply owing to the fact that one eye of a flatfish has since the creature's birth passed across what we may call the bridge of its nose to keep company with the other eye.

The wandering eye begins its migration at a very early age—so early, indeed, that it is a little difficult to detect it on its journey. A plaice a fifth of an inch in length and 5 days old carries one eye on each side of its nose. When three-fifths of an inch long and about 2 months old, the left eye has crossed over to the right side. Lemon soles when one inch long or 2 months old have the left eye on the edge of the head, but when double that size and 6 months old both eyes are found on the right side. A sole assumes its lopsided aspect by the time it has been hatched 2 months. When a turbot is half an inch in length, the right eye just begins to peep over the center arch of the bridge, at three-quarters of an inch it is half way across, and at an inch the passage is complete and the two eyes look out from the left side of the head. —Longman's Magazine.

AN ABANDONED FARM.

It Surely Was Hard and Stony Land, and No Exaggeration.

She was on the witness stand in her own behalf, being also defendant in the action. She was a sturdy widow, hard working, shrewd in a deal and garrulous. A landlord was suing for back rent on a little farm she had abandoned.

"You say that the land was hard and sour and sterile?" suggested the attorney for the plaintiff.

"That's what I said, only I wasn't so persniffity about it, and I'll say more"—

"Just a moment, please. We want evidence, not opinions. Did you raise anything on this land of ours?"

"Land of ours!" with a sniff. "You never owned a thimbleful of it. Yes, I did raise things on it. It took two hills to raise a bean and a whole row of corn to raise a nubbin. I raised a cabin, I raised a pigpen, and I tried to raise a goat, but it starved to death, poor thing! That ground wouldn't raise dog fennel or even Canada thistles."

"Don't exaggerate, please. You say the soil was sour?"

"I couldn't exaggerate about that ground if I was a lawyer. In the morning when the dew was steaming off in the sunshine you'd think you was living next door to a pickle factory. I kept my sugar in an airtight jar."

"Pshaw! That's ridiculous. I suppose the ground was so hard you could not blast it?"

"Nuthing of the kind. I'm here to tell the truth. But I'll tell you how hard that ground was. I had to crop my set onions out with a hatchet, and a big gander I bought broke his neck trying to pull a tuft of spear grass." The landlord did not recover.—Detroit Free Press.

Bedrooms and Breathing.

While no scientist, I think, will recommend less than seven cubic feet of air each minute for an adult, Dr. Reed gives ten as the smallest amount that will meet the wants of the body. All of this, of course, is not absolutely used, only needed that purity may be secured. The average room—12 by 10 and 8 feet high—even if the room is empty, will consume only 960 cubic feet, or enough to supply air for one person for about two hours. Now, when two or even four persons occupy such a room, the doors and windows closed to keep out the supposed "poisonous night air," it is not strange that the stench of vitiated air is overpowering to one who enters the room after breathing the pure air of heaven, such as the good Father intended for use.—Weekly Bouquet.

Juvenile Discouragement.

Elsie—Mamma, there's a funny old man in this Pickwick book that's always telling his son to beware of the widows. Why is that?

Mamma—Well, a widow is supposed to be skillful in catching a husband.

Elsie—Gracious! I wonder if I'll have to be a widow before I can get married. —Philadelphia Press.

Frozen In.

The making of postholes is an easy matter in Alaska. A mass of powder blasts out the hole in an instant, a telegraph pole is inserted, water is poured in, and the intense cold holds the pole secure in an incasement of ice.

Life Saving Politeness.

Patriotism and politeness are great virtues, and a Japanese physician, Dr. Aoyama, owes his life to the fact that he possessed them both in high degree.

He had caught the plague and was dying for the need of the food which, in his delirium, he refused to take. His nurse was in despair, but finally conceived the idea of playing upon his patriotism by filling a glass with liquid nourishment and then offering to drink to the health of the mikado.

This was repeated until, ardent patriot as he was, the doctor felt that he had honored his sovereign enough.

Then his politeness was appealed to, the nurse proposing a toast and reproaching the sick man for not joining in it. In this way the patient's strength was maintained until the delirium subsided and he became convalescent.—Youth's Companion.

The Ostrich's Legs.

Although the ostrich has powerful legs and can kick like a mule, his limbs are very brittle and are easily broken. He has two toes on each foot, one being armed with a horny nail which he uses as his principal weapon of warfare. When an unarmed man is attacked by one of these birds, the chances are very much against the man unless he can climb a tree or jump over a five foot wall.

An Alternative Conclusion.

A Jersey farmer visiting New York stood looking at a sign in a bookstore window, "Dickens' Works All This Week For Two Dollars." "Waal," he remarked, "my 'pinion is that that Dickens feller is either a mighty poor workman or else he's confounded hard up for a job."—Boston Courier.

Acted Out the Character.

"It was understood that the cashier had been a lamb in Wall street."

"Therefore," said I, with a happy smile, "he skipped." — Indianapolis Press.

Studies of the ocean bottom near the coast line of continents have shown that rivers of considerable size sometimes enter the sea beneath the surface.

The one redeeming feature about air castles is that you don't have to pay rent on them.—Omaha News.

The Minister Won.

A minister was one day walking along a road, and, to his astonishment, he saw a crowd of boys sitting in front of a ring with a small dog in the center. When he came up to them, he put the following question: "What are you doing to the dog?"

One little boy said, "Whoever tells the biggest lie wins it."

"Oh," said the minister, "I am surprised at you little boys, for when I was like you I never told a lie."

There was silence for awhile until one of the boys shouted, "Hand him up the dog!"—London Leader.

THE PEOPLE KNEW HIM.
(Benson's Plaster Is Pain's Master.)

George Washington made and sold flour, and every barrel of flour in the market branded "G. Washington, Mount Vernon," sold without delay. No question was ever raised as to quality or weight.

Benson's Porous Plaster sells on its reputation everywhere. All the buyer wants to be certain of is that the plaster offered him really is Benson's, and not a worthless imitation of it or substitute for it.

A plaster is the best form of external remedy, and Benson's is the best plaster; 5,000 physicians and druggists, and a multitude of people no man can number, have settled that. "You can trust it," they say.

Coughs, colds, lame back, lumbago, muscular stiffness and rheumatism, troubles of the liver and kidneys, influenza or grip, pneumonia, and all other diseases open to external treatment, are at once relieved and cured by Benson's Plaster.

Do not assume that Belladonna, Capsicum or Strengthening plasters are "just as good as" Benson's. They are vastly inferior.—No other plaster is as good as Benson's.

In competition with the best-known plasters of Europe and America, Benson's have received fifty-five highest awards.

A Minister's Mistake.

A city minister was recently handedanotice to be read from his pulpit. Accompanying it was a clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the matter. The clergyman started to read the extract and found that it began: "Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure." This was hardly what he expected and, after a moment's hesitation, he turned it over, and found on the other side the matter intended for the reading.
